Walt Whitman burst onto the American literary scene in 1855 with a small book of poems, Leaves of Grass. Well, more like snuck onto, for Whitman privately had only 795 copies printed. He sent a copy to Ralph Waldo Emerson, who found in the young, brash poet an impressive new national voice and said so in a letter to him. (Walt, no shrinking violet, promptly published it.) The initial book was the first version of what we know as “Song of Myself,” arguably one of the greatest American poems ever written. Although he was known and appreciated during his lifetime (as well as considered scandalous by many), it was not until the mid-20th century that Whitman, like his near contemporary Emily Dickinson, was really recognized.

The course—discussion, not lecture—will cover “Song of Myself” and a few of Whitman’s other most celebrated poems like “Crossing Brooklyn Ferry,” “When Lilacs Last in the Dooryard Bloom’d” and “O Captain! My Captain.” The last two are his reaction to the death of Lincoln.

Paul Revere
Remounted

Study Group Leader: Joanna Henderson
Mondays, 1:30 – 3:30 p.m.
3-week minicourse beginning September 17
Newbury Community Room, Newbury

“Listen my children and you shall hear
Of the midnight ride of Paul Revere
On the 18th of April in seventy five;
Hardly a man is now alive
Who remembers that famous day and year.”
–Henry Wadsworth Longfellow

Despite Longfellow’s famous poem, historians have not placed Paul Revere at the forefront of America’s great Revolutionary movement. He held no high office, wrote none of the great documents, led no army and did not command the attention the Founding Fathers were given. Still, this folkloric character was a figure of high importance and was much more than a midnight messenger. His story, however, is filled with incorrect information, misunderstandings and ambiguity.

This minicourse, combining lecture and discussion, will examine the legend of Paul Revere. How much of the saga is true? What actually happened the night of the famous ride, and why have the myths been perpetuated? We will look at the whole man—Revere the artisan and master silversmith, the engraver and dentist, the entrepreneur, the business person and patriot.
England’s Romantic Poets Up Close and Personal

Byron, Shelley, Keats, Blake, Coleridge and Wordsworth: England’s Romantic poets are almost as legendary for their exotic, tragic and scandalous lives as for the lushness, emotion and ardor of their poetry. In the English-speaking world, no one other than Shakespeare has matched the richness, sensibility and passion of their works, in which imagination is prized over reason, emotion over logic, and intuition over science.

In this course we’ll get up close and personal with each poet to get to know their character and personality as well as their most popular works, and possibly what shaped their muse. In week one we will explore the origins of Romanticism and the influence of the highly mystical William Blake. We’ll spend time in week two with the Founding Fathers of Romantic poetry, Samuel Taylor Coleridge and William Wordsworth, before turning in week three to compare and contrast Romantic poetry’s ying and yang: the radical Percy Bysshe Shelley and the wealthy, handsome and seductive Lord Byron. In the final class, we’ll luxuriate in the genius of John Keats, and close by discussing the enduring legacy of the brief Romantic era.

Each week we’ll read the poems aloud to enjoy what some have called a “heaven of sound” because of the poems’ rich sonority, and to try and capture the full depth and richness of the emotions the poets wished to convey. Participants will be encouraged to bring their favorite poems to class for everyone to share.

Study Group Leader: Morris Edwards
Tuesdays, 9:30 – 11:30 a.m.
4-week minicourse beginning September 18
New London Town Office Building

He and his wife, Jeanne, moved to New London 14 years ago after living in New York, Wayland, Mass., and Potomac, Md.

What Would Mohammed Do? An Unauthorized Biography

As a way to introduce the Adventures in Learning program to the Newport community, this course is being offered to all participants without the normally required membership fee.

You have indeed in the Messenger of God a beautiful pattern for any whose hope is in God and the Last Day.  Koran 33:21

In order to answer the question, “What would Mohammed do?” we must first answer the question, what did Mohammed do? As a step toward this, the course will offer a review of the life and legacy of Mohammed. It will begin with an outline of Arabian religion before Mohammed and a description of Mohammed’s early Meccan Period. It will then cover the flight to Medina, the problems faced in Medina and how they were resolved. The final section will cover the caliphs, the successors to Mohammed and the faith they inherited and spread. The Koran was being written while these events were in progress, so it is possible to relate verses to them. This will be noted throughout the course. The Koran is Mohammed’s dictation and will provide further insights into his character and his perceptions.

The course will be presented in PowerPoint and illustrated with videos and art work reproduced from museum and library collections. The presentation will be reproduced in text form and is required reading for the course. It is available for the cost of duplication from the AIL Office. Sources used in preparing the course also serve as optional reading—biographies by Tor Andrae, Karen Armstrong, Will Durant and W. Montgomery Watt.

Study Group Leader: Art Rosen
Tuesdays, 9:30 – 11:30 a.m.
4-week minicourse beginning September 18
Richards Free Library, Newport

He is a study leader and was an officer at both Adventures in Learning and the Institute for Lifelong Education at Dartmouth. He is the immediate past president of Adventures in Learning.
Recent Advances in the Study of Human Origins

Study Group Leader: Dick Cavallaro
Tuesdays, 9:30 – 11:30 a.m.
8 weeks beginning September 18
Kearsarge Learning Campus, Professional Development Center, New London

The past several years have seen significant strides in the study of the early physical development of the human race. This discipline is broadly known as paleoanthropology, and it rests on the pillars of numerous other branches of science.

We will explore how genetics, the dating of fossils and major climatic changes have shaped our understanding of this field.

Our conversation will consider the journey of man from the earliest “ground ape” to modern humans. The importance of the toolkits (or “industries”) and migratory patterns of several species of our genus, Homo, will be discussed.

We will also delve into topics such as the positive and negative effects of bipedalism, the development of the brain and the emergence and development of a spoken language.

The final session can be used as a general review and/or to consider topical issues of the day as they relate to this course. Ideally participants will determine the structure and will take the lead in this discussion.

Above all, group discussion will be encouraged. Access to the World Wide Web will be of great assistance to participants in this program.

Dick Cavallaro
Dick came to New London in 1994. Previously he had served as medical director at Naples Community Hospital in Florida. Since arriving in New London he has enjoyed involvement in various volunteer positions at Colby-Sawyer College, the Town of New London, New London Hospital and the Lake Sunapee Region VNA. He received a Bachelor of Science degree from the College of the Holy Cross and a Doctor of Medicine from the University of Tennessee. After service in the U.S. Navy, he held a post as associate professor (anesthesiology) at Temple University, College of Medicine. Dick’s interest in human origins is purely an avocation.
Franklin Delano Roosevelt was born with a silver spoon in his mouth. Educated by private tutors before he went to the Groton School, Harvard University and Columbia Law School, his social group was the elite of society. Yet, FDR became the president who was adored by the blue-collar workers and detested by those with power and money. People loved him or they hated him in his own day, and many have the same reactions now. He was in office during two of the greatest crises of the 20th century, the Great Depression and World War II. For better or for worse, FDR left an indelible mark on the society of the United States and the world.

‘The Child Is Father of the Man’—Or Is He?

Study Group Leader: Les Norman
Tuesdays, 1:30 – 3:30 p.m.
4-week minicourse beginning September 18
Lake Sunapee Bank Community Room,
Newport Road, New London

In 1964 Granada TV in Britain interviewed 14 7-year old children from widely varied backgrounds, asking them about their lives and their expectations. Broadcast of the edited interviews generated considerable viewer interest. Seven years later Granada decided to re-interview the same 14 children, now 14-year olds. Although much had turned out as might have been expected, there were also many surprises. Again viewer interest stimulated further investigation, and the interviews have been repeated every seven years to the present. The broadcasts are now available on DVD.

We will watch a selection of these interviews, and discuss our reactions to the expected and unexpected twists and changes in the lives of the participants. Were we surprised by how their lives turned out? Did childhood class, deprivation or privilege have a lasting effect? What part was played by birth family dynamics? Did the interviewer’s biases have a significant effect? How did participants cope with life’s setbacks and disappointments? Did the interviews, or the anticipation of future interviews, affect the lives of any participants? Are those British children/adults significantly different from their American counterparts? Did viewing these lifelong snapshots alter our assessment of the relative effects of nature and nurture?

The End of Life: a Discussion Among Friends

Jim will be supported by a course leadership team for this discussion of the end of life. The issues that this course will cover are organized into four topics: medical, legal, religious and community. Each opening session will be a presentation by an expert in these four areas. The presentation on legal issues will be by John Garvey and Graham McSwiney, both of whom have professional experience in elderlaw; the medical concerns will be discussed by Jack Kirk, a local physician; the religious issues will be introduced by Lee Duval, minister at the Unitarian Universalist Congregation of the Upper Valley and a former hospital chaplain; and the community concerns will be addressed by Susan Reeves R.N., Ed.D., VP at Dartmouth-Hitchcock Medical Center and chair of the Department of Nursing at Colby-Sawyer.

The discussion groups during the second hour of each session will be facilitated and supported by a team including Dick Dutton, retired Baptist minister; Roger Wells, architect; Aarne Vesilind, emeritus professor of engineering; David Almond, minister of music at the First Baptist Church; Gardner Yenawine, retired psychologist and counselor; and Van Crawford, Hospice care team member and grief counselor at the Lake Sunapee Region Visiting Nurse Association.
Basic Drawing and Portraiture

Study Group Leader: Chris Bowditch
Wednesdays, 1:30 – 3:30 p.m.
8 weeks beginning September 19
New London Town Office Building

“The forest would be silent if only the best birds sang.”
–Zoltan Koday

Chris is a firm believer that everyone can learn to draw. Learning to draw is learning to see; we draw from our mind not our hand.

This course will be an opportunity to explore your own creative skills to enrich your life. We will start by exploring basic drawing techniques, leading ultimately to portrait drawing.

Experimenting with various drawing materials for the most effective results will be an important element. Some homework will be expected to help participants practice their drawing skills and fully understand the materials being used.

Some materials will be provided and are included in the cost of the course. Participants will also need to purchase additional materials for this course: 8" x 10" or 9" x 12" sketchbook, kneaded eraser, graphite pencils 2B, 4B, 6B, 9B (woodless), box of 12 soft pastels and a drawing board.

Chris Bowditch

Chris has taught art for the last 42 years as an international teacher in Italy, Ethiopia, Singapore, Israel, Germany and Brazil. She spent the last 17 years teaching for the International Baccalaureate Organization and working as a diploma examiner. Chris has a B.A. from the University of Wisconsin and an M.A. in overseas administration from the College of New Jersey. She has worked with students of all ages, including adults. She has taught all forms of art, both two and three dimensional. Her own preference is sculpture and drawing. She returned to the United States and in June of 2011 moved to New London to retire.
A lecture series
Six Great Americans Who Were Also Secretaries of State

Moderator: John Ferries
Thursdays, 9:30 – 11:30 a.m.
6-week lecture series beginning September 27
New London Historical Society

There have been 67 U.S. secretaries of State, spanning 222 years, from Thomas Jefferson to Hillary Clinton. For some, serving as secretary of State was the pinnacle of their careers. For others, it was merely a stepping stone to a more distinguished career elsewhere. Some produced major accomplishments as secretary of State, others did not. But the unmistakable fact is that there is an interesting story to tell about each one. The six speakers in this series have selected one secretary of State to “bring alive” for you, warts and all.

September 27  John Milton Hay, 1838–1905 / David Bashaw
John Milton Hay began his public career as private secretary to Abraham Lincoln, and ended it as secretary of State under Presidents William McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt from 1898 to 1905. He was an American statesman, diplomat, author and journalist, a refined conversationalist and a key figure in late 19th-century American life. He counted Henry Adams, Mark Twain and Walt Whitman among his wide circle of friends. As secretary of State Hay was involved with the end of the Spanish-American war, the Open Door policy in China and building of the Panama Canal. Hay spent summers in the Lake Sunapee area at his lakeside estate, The Fells, in Newbury, N.H.

October 4  William Jennings Bryan, 1860–1925 / Joanna Henderson
William Jennings Bryan belonged to a political group which hardly exists today—evangelical liberals. He was a crusader who worked tirelessly against evolution and for prohibition, and brought Jefferson and Jesus together in all his thinking, writing and speaking as few had before him and no one has since. William Jennings Bryan began his career as a lawyer, but his sonorous and deeply powerful voice, which he could project a remarkable distance, helped him combine oratory and politics first as a congressman and then as a three-time presidential candidate. He eventually served President Woodrow Wilson as secretary of State from 1913–1915 before resigning over the issue of “war preparedness.” But his most famous battle was also his last, when he served as prosecutor for the Scopes Monkey Trial in 1925. Always fascinating, Bryan was an intriguing character in every respect.

October 11
John Marshall, 1755–1835 / Tom Galligan

Some secretaries of State are famous for what they did while in that office; others are famous for what they did in some other position. John Marshall, who served as secretary of State from 1800 to 1801, fits into the latter category. America’s greatest and longest-serving chief justice of the U.S. Supreme Court was a Virginian, a Revolutionary War veteran, an ardent federalist, and the secretary of State under President John Adams. Indeed Marshall acted as chief justice and held the office of secretary of State at the same time. And it was as secretary of State that he failed to deliver William Marbury’s commission as a justice of the peace which set the stage for perhaps his greatest opinion as chief justice—Marbury v. Madison.

October 18
James G. Blaine, 1830–1893 / Bill Dowd

James G. Blaine was a presidential contender who narrowly lost the election but changed political history. He was a teacher, journalist and investor, but first and foremost he was a consummate politician, nicknamed Mr. Republican. Born and educated in Pennsylvania, he moved to Maine shortly after his marriage to begin a career in journalism, which evolved easily and naturally into politics. He served as U.S. representative, speaker of the House, U.S. senator and two-time secretary of State. Blaine was incredibly ambitious, talented and charismatic, an outstanding politician who made a difference but who failed, after three tries, to achieve his greatest ambition, the presidency. As secretary of State under Presidents James Garfield and Chester Arthur in 1881 and Benjamin Harrison from 1889 to 1892, Blaine was a transitional figure, marking the end of an isolationist era in foreign policy and foreshadowing the rise of the American century.

October 25
Cordell Hull, 1871–1955 / John Ferries

His life started humbly in a small log cabin in Tennessee, but ended grandly as the recipient of the Nobel Peace Prize in 1945. In between, Cordell Hull had a career as a powerful 11-term Democratic Congressman, he was the architect of our federal income tax and inheritance tax laws, and he was a candidate for president in 1928. Hull became the longest-serving secretary of State in U.S. history, serving under President Franklin D. Roosevelt from 1933 to 1944, a tenure that spanned Hitler’s rise, WW II and the formation of the United Nations.

November 1
Daniel Webster, 1782-1852 / Bill Helm

Daniel Webster was a son of New Hampshire and Dartmouth College who made his mark in U.S. history as one of the “Great Triumvirate” of politicians in the first half of the 19th century—Webster, Clay and Calhoun. His many career accomplishments included serving as congressman and senator from Massachusetts, Whig Party activist and secretary of State under Presidents William Harrison and John Tyler from 1841 to 1843 and under President Millard Fillmore from 1850 to 1852.
Buddhism is a world religion, yet there is confusion in the west about what it teaches. Is the Buddha a transcendent being or merely a sage showing us the way?

This course begins with the historical Buddha Shakyamuni in the fifth-century B.C.E. and explores how the teachings have changed with the passage of time and distance from its beginnings in India. We will discuss the Lotus Sutra, the teaching that Shakyamuni Buddha—the awakened one—taught in the final years of his life and explore through dialogue what relevance it has today. The Buddhist concepts of Karma, Suffering and Human Revolution will be studied. We will discuss the Buddhist cosmology of life, the 3,000 realms in a single moment, that was systematized by the Chinese teacher, Tien-tai, in the sixth century. Concepts such as “the ten worlds,” the nine consciousnesses” and non-duality will be discussed. Finally we will look at how Buddhism can be used in daily life to bring wisdom and joy.

Buddhahood seems like a goal, but it is not. It is a clear path. It is hope itself—hope to advance eternally toward self-improvement, greater fulfillment and increased peace of mind and enjoyment in life.” (The Wisdom of the Lotus Sutra, Vol. 2, Ikeda, p. 116)

For those interested, chanting based on the title of the Lotus Sutra will be led by Mrs. Fielding at the end of each class.

Please note there will be no session on Thursday, October 11.
What’s Wrong with the American Political System?

Study Group Leader: Hilary P. Cleveland
Fridays, 9:30 – 11:30 a.m.
6 weeks beginning September 21
New London Town Office Building

Back by popular demand, this course will be offered first to those people on the waiting list from the spring 2012 term. If available spaces remain, others will be added in the order of their request.

Whom should we blame for the problems America is having governing itself? Is it the leadership, the system itself, the times, the electorate? Have we outgrown the Constitution? Is it the cost of everything from being elected to running the country? Americans seem to be dissatisfied, frustrated and angry with the way our government is unable to get anything accomplished.

With public opinion of our elected leaders at an all-time low, it seems appropriate to ask what has gone wrong with our political system. This course will cover several of the problems that seem to be impeding effective governance today. Examples will include campaign finance, the presidential primary system, the Electoral College, the threat of filibuster in the Senate, the politicization of the judicial system and the increasing polarization of the two major political parties. The format will be mostly class discussion with research by individual participants.

Hilary P. Cleveland

Hilary received her B.A. from Vassar College and her M.A. from the Institute of International Relations in Geneva, Switzerland. She started teaching history and government at Colby Junior College in 1955 and continued teaching these subjects at Colby-Sawyer College until her recent retirement. She is an active member of the New Hampshire Historical Society and the League of Women Voters.

The Curriculum Committee of Adventures in Learning is delighted to bring you 12 course offerings for the fall 2012 term, which begins on September 17 and continues through November 6, 2012.

This term we welcome and look forward to the contributions of three new study group leaders—Chris Bowditch, Elizabeth Fielding and James Young. We thank all of our volunteer study group leaders, moderators, lecturers and guest speakers for giving so generously of their time and expertise to make the fall courses possible. We also wish to thank First Baptist Church, Lake Sunapee Bank, Ledyard Bank, New London Historical Society, Richards Free Library, SAU 65 for the use of the Kearsarge Learning Campus, the towns of Newbury and New London, and Tracy Memorial Library for making space available for our fall courses.

Registration Process
► If you have not already paid your dues for the JULY 2012 TO JUNE 2013 MEMBERSHIP YEAR, please include the $40 membership fee when you register.

► To register for courses, complete the form found in this catalog or downloaded from the website.

► For any course that is oversubscribed on July 26, a lottery will be held to randomly select the participants. For this reason, you may wish to select alternate choices on your registration form. We will call you by July 30, if we are unable to enroll you in your first choice(s).

► Following the lottery date, registration for remaining courses with space available continues through August 17. Assignments will be made based on the date the registration form is received.

► If you have signed up and paid for two courses, you may sign up for a third course in this term at no additional charge until August 24. Placement in these third courses will be made, as space permits, on a first come, first served basis.

► Confirmation of your enrollment in a course will be sent on August 30 via e-mail unless we do not have an e-mail address for you.

Books and Other Reading Material
Books that are selected by study group leaders are usually available for purchase at a discounted rate from Morgan Hill Bookstore in New London, N.H. Photocopied materials prepared by study group leaders are offered at cost from the Adventures in Learning Office.
